

Grant Writing

Becca Lamon

EPPSP Group 19

September 19, 2001

Most grant proposals are rejected because they are poorly
written, not because of bad ideas.

Grant Writing 101

Keep Your Eyes Open for Funding Sources

Communicate

Include a Detailed Review of the Literature

Be Meticulous

Give Reviewers a Reason to Fund Your Proposal

Seek Constructive Criticism

Be Realistic

Guidelines for Writing a Solid Proposal

Capture the Reviewer's Attention

Aim for Clarity

Establish the Context

Explain the Importance of Your Project

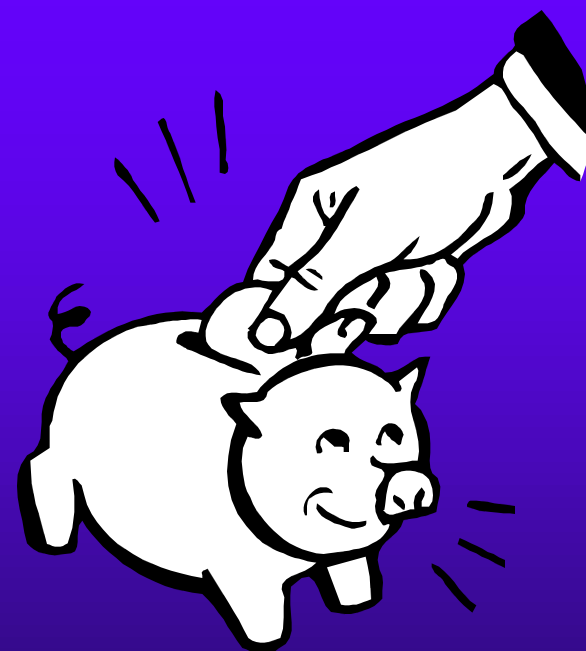

Use a Fresh Approach

Describe Your Methodology

Specify Your Objectives

Where to Look for Grants

- Web Sites
- Books
- Foundations
- School District Foundations
- Notification Services

Those who do not take risks do not reap awards.